GRANTS & FELLOWSHIPS

Agency, Directionality, Function Project (2021-)

Templeton Foundation

Cluster coordinator for the "Modeling Agency Formally" cluster

Morrison Award (2023)

University of Kansas

($8200 for organizing a workshop on "Evolutionary Social Science and Philosophy")

Center for Philosophy of Science, University of Pittsburgh: Visiting Fellow (Spring 2018)

General Research Fund Grant (2017)

University of Kansas

($5888 for research on evolutionary economics)

New Faculty General Research Fund Grant (2015)

University of Kansas

($3000 for a book project concerning the evolution of representational decision making)

HONORS, AWARDS, AND SCHOLARSHIPS

Mark A. Ratner Scholar (2023)

Northwestern University, Department of Chemistry

("chosen by a committee of students as someone who they think will spark the imagination of a broad range of scientists by immersing the Department of Chemistry in a field to which it may not regularly be exposed")

Public Scholars Group (2022)

University of Kansas

(support for accessible yet research-based communication that enriches public discourse)

Byron A. Alexander / John C. Wright Graduate Mentor Award Nomination (2016 and 2017)

University of Kansas

(nominated twice by graduate students for exceptional faculty mentorship)

LSE Teaching Excellence Award Nomination (2013)

London School of Economics and Political Science

(nominated by students for outstanding teaching)

Salary Band Promotion (2012)

London School of Economics and Political Science

(recognition of outstanding research, teaching and administrative service to the school)

Singer Award & Richard W. McHugh Memorial Fund Scholarship (2009)

Department of Philosophy, University of Wisconsin-Madison

(research support for outstanding graduate students)

Prize Fellowship (2005)

Graduate School of Letters and Sciences, University of Wisconsin-Madison

(research support in recognition of outstanding academic credentials)

Outstanding Teacher Award (2005)

Department of Philosophy, Logic and Scientific Method, London School of Economics and Political Science

(recognition of outstanding undergraduate class teaching)

Andrea Mannu Award (2003)

Department of Philosophy, Logic and Scientific Method, London School of Economics and Political Science

(recognition of outstanding academic achievement in the BSc)

German National Merit Award Scholarship (2001-2004)

Studienstiftung des Deutschen Volkes

(study support for especially gifted students)

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Philosophy of Economics, University of Kansas (x2) & London School of Economics (x3) (for graduate and advanced undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include the nature of economics; microfoundations; evolutionary economics, Rational Choice Theory; game theory; social choice theory; welfare economics; utilitarianism; Rawlsianism; egalitarianism

Philosophy of Social Science (x4), University of Kansas (for graduate and advanced undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include folk psychological theorizing; Rational Choice Theory; interpretationist social inquiry; functionalism and holism; biologically-based social science; feminist social inquiry; the relationship between ethics and social inquiry

Introduction to Cognitive Science (x3), University of Kansas (for undergraduate students)

Topics discussed included the nature of psychological content, the nature of memory, the evolution of cognition, the relationship between cognition and perception, the interplay between learning and innate cognitive structures, the nature of psychological and neural computation, the structure of human and animal minds.

Processes in Biology (Advanced Topics in Philosophy), University of Kansas (for graduate students)

Topics discussed include the idea that the common mechanistic and substance-focused understanding of biological events should be replaced with one based on a hierarchy of interdependent processes, the nature of selection, the nature of fitness, adaptationism, units of selection, the nature and centrality of genes in biology, gene-culture coevolutionary theory, the logic of phylogenetic inferences

Evolutionary Economics (Topics in Philosophy of Science), University of Kansas (for graduate students)

Topics discussed include the basics of evolutionary theory and economic theory; reductionism; evidence and confirmation theory; heuristics in science; firm evolution; long-term economic growth; equilibrium modeling; economic decision-making in non-human animals; parallels between natural selection and economic decision-making; the evolution of human economic decision-making

The Evolution of Cognition (Topics in Philosophy of Mind), University of Kansas (for graduate students)

Topics discussed include the basics of evolutionary theory; two-systems models of the mind; the modularity of mind; the evolution of representational cognition; classic work in evolutionary psychology; the evolution of learning; the evolution of extended cognition; the evolution of altruism

Philosophy of Science, University of Kansas (x2) (for graduate and advanced undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include logical positivism, falsificationism, Kuhnian philosophy of science, historical and sociological views of science, feminist philosophy of science, scientific realism, explanation, confirmation theory, Bayesianism; applications of the philosophy of science in the sciences.

Philosophy of Biology, University of Kansas (x1) & London School of Economics (x3) (for graduate and advanced undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include the nature, unit, and importance of natural selection; the concepts of gene, fitness, and species; the logic of phylogenetic inference; the existence of macroevolutionary trends; the aims and methods of ecology.

Introduction to Social and Political Philosophy (x4 in-person; x1 online), University of Kansas (for undergraduates)

A large-lecture course introducing students to social and political philosophy. Topics discussed included the origins and nature of government, the aims of ruling, and the methodology of social and political philosophy. Readings were drawn from historical and contemporary sources in the Western and non-Western tradition.

Introduction to Ethics, University of Kansas (for undergraduates)

A large-lecture course (over 200 students) introducing students to ethics. Topics discussed include altruism; social contract theories; utilitarianism; deontology; (Confucian) virtue ethics; the ethics of care; metaethics (error theory and moral realism); ethical methodology; moral responses to famine; markets in reproductive labor; gender and racial inequality; vegetarianism.

Philosophical Communication (x2), University of Kansas (for undergraduates)

A large-lecture course introducing students to the practice of oral communication using philosophical arguments. Topics discussed included personal identity; mind-body dualism and the identity theory; artificial intelligence; consciousness; animal cognition; cognitive delusions.

Proseminar (x6), University of Kansas (for first year graduate students)

Topics discussed include descriptivist and causal theories of reference; Gricean conversational implicatures; teleosemantics; possible world semantics; two-dimensional semantics; empiricist criteria of meaning, the analytic / synthetic distinction; feminist epistemology; experimental philosophy; the metaphysics of possible worlds

History of Analytic Philosophy, University of Kansas (for undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include key works by Frege, Russell, Moore, Wittgenstein, Ayer, Hempel, Carnap, Goodman, Quine, Davidson, Ryle, Sellars, and Kripke.

Introduction to Philosophy (Honors) (x3), University of Kansas (for undergraduate students in the university's honors program)

Topics discussed include the major moral theories; skepticism; falsificationism in science; the ontological argument and the argument from design; the problem of evil; mind-body dualism and the identity theory; artificial intelligence; free will

Philosophy, Morals, and Politics (x2), London School of Economics (for graduate and advanced undergraduate students)

Topics discussed include Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics; Locke's Second Treatise; Rawls's Theory of Justice; recent empirical work on moral theorizing.

Reason, Knowledge, and Values, London School of Economics and Political Science (introduction to philosophy for undergraduate students)

Taught two-week section on the argument from design, based on readings by Paley, Hume, and Sober
