

Some Branches of the Hadley Family Tree

This publication is compiled from information obtained from the 1931 works of W. Irving Hadley of Toledo, Ohio, the data published by Dr. Lee A. Hadley of Syracuse, New York forty years later in 1971, and the handwritten notes that were assembled by my Grandmother, Marion Champney Hadley, during her later years. The following pages track nine generations of the Hadley family starting with Benjamin Hadley.

The generations are listed in order and the direct decendancy is listed at the top of each page for each individual.

Whenever there is further information available on an individual, a down-pointing arrow (▼) precedes that individual's name in the list of offspring. The information can then be found in the listing for the next generation. If no further information is available for an individual, an up-pointing arrow (▲) precedes that person's name.

While every effort has been made to maintain accuracy there may be some errors. Any information on errors or omissions should be sent to me at 5481 Kemmie Lane, Mableton, GA 30126.

There is no doubt that we are in agreement with Dr. Lee Hadley's statement in his compilation, "We are proud of our sturdy pioneer ancestors. Surrounded by the dangers and hardships of a young colonial nation, they worked tirelessly to clear the wilderness and played their part in helping to establish our magnificent Republic. We are grateful for the heritage left to us by these industrious, devout forefathers."

The first meeting hall in this part of the country was built on this hill...

Irving Hadley was able to trace the Hadley lineage back to Benjamin Hadley. In his excellent report he has written, "About two miles west and about one-half mile north of the Main Street of Brattleboro, Vermont, on the top of a beautiful hill commanding a marvelous view of valleys and the Green Mountains in the distance, lies the Meeting House Hill Cemetery. The first meeting house in this part of the country was built on this hill and this cemetery was just north of the Meeting House. This was probably one of the first cemeteries to be dedicated to the burial of white settlers in this territory, which later became the State of Vermont.

"Just north of the site of the first meeting house under a magnificent old pine tree that looks as if it had been there since before the first grave was made, lies the body of Benjamin Hadley. The original slate stone slab was still standing in 1930, (and in 1970 as reported by Dr. Lee Hadley) and with the inscription plainly legible. This inscription was 'Memento Mori' (Remember that you must die). 'In Memory of Mr. Benjamin Hadley who died Mch. 24th, 1776 in the 92nd year of his age.'

“At the foot of this grave is a large grey granite block, rough cut, and about as high as the original monument. There is set into the face of this block a bronze plate about nine by twelve inches in size upon which are raised letters which read 'Benjamin Hadley Descendent of George Hadley, born in Chelmsford, Mass. 1685 Died 1776.' This monument was erected by a group of Hadleys from Cattaragus County, New York about 1910.

By far the most information to be found about George Hadley is in the “Genealogical Record of the descendants of Moses Hadley and Rebecca Page together with some account of George Hadley of Ipswich, Massachusetts and his descendants” by Judge Samuel Page Hadley of Lowell, Massachusetts. This book was published in 1887, and Judge Hadley later published eight pages of “notes and corrections” which also adds to the knowledge of George Hadley. According to Judge Hadley, George Hadley of Ipswich, Massachusetts was a native of England and came to this country before 1639.

If Benjamin Hadley was a descendent of George Hadley he must have been his grandson. Most genealogical records only name two sons of George Hadley; one of which was John who died childless in 1711 and the other, Samuel, who had a family of twelve children. However, since his youngest son born February 24, 1704, was named Benjamin it must be concluded that he was not the father of our Benjamin.

There is an entry among the Ipswich deaths which says George Hadley Senior was buried September 30, 1686. This “Senior” would indicate that he had a son named George. George Hadley Senior’s will was admitted to probate in Suffolk County, Massachusetts on November 4, 1686. In this will he names his sons, John, Samuel and Joseph, but no mention is made of a son George. No further record has been found of either George or Joseph but if Benjamin Hadley was a descendent of George Hadley it must be concluded that he must have been the son of either George or Joseph Hadley.

In the early records of New England there is mention of another Hadley named Dennis Hadley. Dennis Hadley was born in England in 1650 and died in Sudbury, Massachusetts January 15, 1741 or 1742. The History of Worcester County, Massachusetts says that Benjamin Hadley was the son of Dennis Hadley. This is evidently an error as by the inscription on Benjamin Hadley's tombstone he was born between March 24, 1684 and March 24, 1685 and Dennis Hadley had a daughter Tabitha born November 2, 1684.

There is also among the early records of Middlesex County, Massachusetts the record of a deed in which Dennis Hadley referred to "John my only son" and John was born in 1690. If Dennis had any sons older than John they died before this deed was made.

A large group of Hadleys migrated from Brattleboro, Vermont between 1806 and 1812 and settled in the neighborhood of what is now Sandy Creek, Oswego County, New York. A few years later there was another large group of Hadleys with some of their neighbors that migrated from Brattleboro to Cattaraugus County, New York and settled in the neighborhood of what is now Ashford and West Valley.

Since the connection between George and Benjamin Hadley has not been conclusively proven, this record of this branch of the Hadley family will begin with the earliest known ancestor, Benjamin Hadley of Brattleboro, Vermont.

First Generation

BENJAMIN

Little is known about the life history of Benjamin Hadley. He was probably born at Chelmsford or Lancaster, Massachusetts. He was 26 years old and living in Lancaster when he married Mehitable Applin of Watertown, Massachusetts. They resided in Watertown, now known as Weston, the first years of their married life as their first two children were born there. They must have moved to Groton, Massachusetts about 1714 as the rest of their children were born there. There is no record of him in Groton after 1745 when he came to Brattleboro, Vermont in his late 80s. Some of his children had preceded him to Brattleboro. He spent his last days there and died on March 24, 1776, at the ripe old age of ninety-two. His was one of the very earliest graves in the Meeting House Cemetery which had been officially established only eight years prior to his death. See “Genealogies of Watertown, Waltham, & Weston” by Henry Bond M.D.

Benjamin Hadley and his descendants were loyal to the Revolution. There are records of his sons doing civilian duty and he had no less than nine grandsons who served in the Revolutionary War. His grandson Samuel Hadley was one of the Company under Captain Parker who faced the British on Lexington Common early in the morning of April 19, 1775, and he was killed a short distance from the common. His name is inscribed on the monument there. Another grandson, Jonathan Hadley, was killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill the following June.

Benjamin Hadley was born 1684 or 1685. He was married September 27, 1711, by Mr. Samuel Augier, minister in Watertown, Massachusetts to Mehitable Applin of Watertown. Mehitable was born April 7, 1688 and was the daughter of John and Bethsheba Bartlett Applin who were married on November 23, 1671. Bethsheba Bartlett, Mehitable's mother, was born on April 17, 1647 and died October 8, 1692. John Applin, her father, was living in 1727 and he may not have been born in New England. John Applin was asked in April 1703 to be a school master in Groton, Massachusetts and lived for a short time at Littleton, Massachusetts. Mehitable Applin Hadley died at Groton, Massachusetts on April 13, 1745, age fifty-seven.

Benjamin and Mehitable Applin Hadley were the parents of five sons and five daughters, all born in Massachusetts. They were:

- ▼ Thomas—Born in Watertown August 11, 1712. Married in Lexington May 15, 1741, to Ruth Lawrence who was born in 1725. They had twelve children.
- ▲ Sarah—Born in Watertown November 22, 1713. Married (Published on October 7th) 1739, to Ebenezer Merriam of Concord.
- ▲ Benjamin—Born in Groton July 25, 1715. Married in 1746 to Sarah Adams of Lexington.
- ▲ Mehitable—Born in Groton February 14, 1717. Married January 4, 1737, to John (or Joshua) Wheeler.
- ▼ John—Born in Groton September 28, 1719. He married Eunice —?—.
- ▲ Phebe—Born in Groton September 25, 1721.
- ▲ Simon—Born in Groton March 20, 1723.
- ▲ Hanah—Born in Groton February 18, 1725.
- ▼ Ebenezer—Born in Groton on November 8, 1727, and was married June 11, 1753, to Abigail Spalding of Chelmsford, Massachusetts. She was born on August 31, 1735 and died September 6, 1813. Ebenezer died April 27, 1815.
- ▲ Ann—Born in Groton April 9, 1730.

The preceding information was found in "The History of Worcester County Mass." Vol. 2 Page 325 and in Groton Vital Records and early church records of Groton as reported by Irving Hadley.

In "The History of Worcester County" Vol. 2 page 325, the fifth son of Benjamin and Mehitable Hadley is given as "Eleazer Born Nov. 8th 1727" and then at the bottom of the list is listed another son "Ebenezer" with no birth date or other information. The Ebenezer was added to this history list because he was known to have been of that family, even though the birth date could not be given. It says "Ebenezer" and not "probably Ebenezer" as it would have, had there been a doubt.

Ten children are recorded in Groton Vital Records, under various spellings of the name, with the same dates given as in the Worcester County History, but substituting Ebenezer for "Eleazer" given in the history. Ebenezer is shown as the son of Benjamin and Mehitable Hadley in all of the earliest church records of Groton. We therefore can accept the birth date of Ebenezer as November 8, 1727, as it is so given in Groton Vital Records and usually the vital records are accepted as authentic. We also have the Vermont Vital Records which say he died April 27, 1815, in his eighty-eighth year. The only reasonable conclusion is that this name "Eleazer" is a mistake growing out of the copying of the old long-hand records and Benjamin and Mehitable never had a son named Eleazer.

The Hadleys were farmers and pioneers in every sense of the word, producing most of their own food and clothing. They raised wool and flax from which the women of the family spun and wove the material for their winter and summer clothing.

The bread, free of preservatives, was baked in great domed-shaped stone or brick ovens. The structure was thoroughly heated in advance by a fire built inside. The coals were then brushed out with an oven broom made from green twigs tied into a bundle. The loaves were deposited on the bare hot stones from a flat wooden shovel or “bread peeler.” When the oven was completely charged or loaded, the opening was tightly sealed and left undisturbed until completely cool, usually six to eight hours later. The loaves baked slowly to a crisp golden brown and had a delicious flavor like that still encountered in the rural areas of certain foreign countries where this method of baking is used.

The Indians, resentful of the encroachment upon their lands by the English, and encouraged by the French from Canada, were a constant menace to the peace and safety of the early settlers. The Connecticut River Valley was the logical north-south travel route for these forays, as well as being the frontier of the Massachusetts Colony at that time. William Dummer, an early proprietor or land owner of Northfield and Deerfield, was directed to build a fort “capable of housing forty men who would scout the River and other approach routes to discover the enemy moving toward the towns.” Fort Dummer, a blockhouse 180 feet square, completely surrounded by five or six acres of cleared plowed land, was built in 1724 on the west bank of the Connecticut River just south of what is now Brattleboro, Vermont.

In connection with land clearing it was sometimes necessary to sacrifice much fine virgin timber. However, the Royal Patents specified that no tall pine trees suitable for masts of His Majesty’s Navy ships should be cut! Nevertheless this edict is said to have been frequently violated.

Many fine logs, after removal of the bark for tanning, were burned to obtain the ashes, these were leached by allowing water to slowly trickle through. This extracted the lye or potash, rich in potassium, used in the manufacture of gun powder. Here was a salable cash product in a day when money was scarce, and payment was usually made “in kind”—that is in produce.

BENJAMIN THOMAS

Thomas Hadley, the first child of Benjamin and Mehitable Applin Hadley, was born August 11, 1712. He was married on May 15, 1741, to Ruth Lawrence—who was born in 1725—of Lexington, Massachusetts and settled in that town. He was active in affairs of the community and was a member of Captain Parker's Company of the Militia. They were the parents of twelve children. Four of his six sons were soldiers in the American Revolution. The oldest one, Samuel, was killed at the Battle of Lexington, on April 19, 1775. The children of Thomas and Ruth Lawrence Hadley were:

- ▲ Elizabeth—Born May 11, 1742. Died unmarried.
- ▲ Thomas—Born July 3, 1744. Died in infancy.
- ▲ Samuel—Born July 9, 1746. Revolutionary Soldier, killed at the Battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775.
- ▲ Ruth—Born March 12, 1749. Died in infancy.
- ▲ Ebenezer—Born May 6, 1751. Died in 1810. He was a Sergeant in Captain Parker's Company, Edmund Munro's Regiment, Lexington on April 19, 1775.
- ▲ Thomas—Born July 8, 1754. Died in 1784. He enlisted May 4, 1775 and became a Corporal in Captain Wood's (5th) Company.
- ▲ Benjamin—Born July 25, 1756. Enlisted May 8, 1775 and became a Sergeant in the Revolutionary War.
- ▲ Ruth—Born June 1, 1759. In 1778 she married James Fowler. In 1785 there was a second marriage to James Blodgett.
- ▲ Simon—Born July 26, 1761. Died in 1801.

BENJAMIN JOHN

John Hadley, the fifth child (third son) of Benjamin and Mehitable Applin Hadley, was born in Groton, Massachusetts September 28, 1719. He was married to Eunice —?—. They lived in Westford, Massachusetts for a number of years as all of their children were born there. In their later years they lived in Vermont, probably Brattleboro.

Their children were:

- ▲ Sarah—Born March 3, 1745. Married in 1769 to Joseph Warren of Littleton.
- ▲ John—Born January 20, 1746. Married in 1774 to Ruth Kemp of Groton, Massachusetts. He was a Private in the Revolutionary War, Captain Oliver Bate's Company, Colonel James Prescott's Regiment.
- ▲ Eunice—Born January 14, 1748—(Probably died an infant).
- ▲ Unice—Born on September 26, 1750—(Name was probably Eunice). Married in 1775 to Levy Farr of Littleton.
- ▲ Peter—Born June 24, 1752.
- ▲ Jonathan—Born July 19, 1754. Private, Revolutionary War, Captain Parker's Company. Killed in the Battle of Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775.
- ▲ Jonas—Born May 26, 1756. Married to Azabah Prescott of Groton. He was a Private in the Revolutionary War, Captain John Minot's Company, Colonel Dike's Regiment.
- ▲ Lucy—Born April 8, 1758.
- ▲ Ruth—Born May 4, 1760.
- ▲ Tryphena—Born March 20, 1762.

BENJAMIN EBENEZER

Ebenezer Hadley, the ninth child (fifth son) of Benjamin and Mehitable Applin Hadley, was born in Groton, Massachusetts November 8, 1727. He was “of Westford” when he was married June 11, 1753, to Abigail Spalding of Chelmsford, Massachusetts. She was born August 31, 1735, the daughter of Jacob and Susanna Pierce Spalding. Her family history is to be found in “Spalding Memorial” by Samuel J. Spalding—1872. She comes from a noted line of ancestors.

Ebenezer and Abigail Hadley lived for a number of years after their marriage in Westford, Massachusetts as all of their children were born there.

About 1770 Ebenezer went to Brattleboro, Vermont together with Jacob Spalding, Jesse Frost, and Benjamin Butterfield. Jacob Spalding was a brother of Abigail Spalding and Jesse Frost and Benjamin Butterfield married her sisters Joanna and Susanna. History of Windham County, Vermont says these young men were among the very earliest settlers of Brattleboro.

A short distance north and west of the present business section of Brattleboro, Vermont lies Meeting House Hill. Upon this elevated point, permitting improved visibility of the various approaching trails, was set aside and deeded in 1768 a tract of five acres for a commons, a burying ground, Meeting House, school and any other community activity. At that early time the town provided not only the school, and school master but also the church and minister as well. Religion played an important part in the lives of these people. Cabot’s “Annals of Brattleboro 1681–1895” describes and lists the “Covenanters,” a group of citizens who agreed to settle and maintain a minister in the town. Ebenezer signed this Covenant in Brattleboro November 12, 1770. The minister was usually an educated man and held a position of considerable leadership in the community. His modest salary consisted largely of fuel, food, rent, and raiment.

Second Generation

There was a single church for all as separate religious denominations had not yet appeared. Sunday provided a day-long service on Meeting House Hill. They came from all directions, some on foot or horseback often riding pillion and even by ox team. There were very few if any carriages at that time. The Hadleys were always very prominent in religious activities. Cabot says that after the morning sermon there was a noon hour rest period for gossip or eating. In the winter time the women used this rest period to visit neighboring homes to replenish the hot coals in their portable footwarmers while their husbands visited the bar room of the nearby tavern which was open even Sundays. The afternoon sermon was scheduled to last two hours. The laws relative to desecration of the "Lord's day" were very strict and the penalties severe. Those guilty of "rude, profane or clamorous discourse, shouting, hollering, screaming, running, dancing or jumping were to be fined forty shillings and whipped on the naked back not to exceed ten stripes nor less than five." These penalties were probably seldom invoked but the fact remains that these people took their religion quite seriously.

Ebenezer Hadley was in Brattleboro by 1770 but he evidently did not take his family with him at first as his youngest child was born in Westford in 1771. He probably went over to Vermont with his brothers-in-law to establish homes in this wild country and then they moved their families later. Whether he brought all of his children when he moved to Brattleboro we are unable to say. We do know however that all of his sons lived there in later years.

The town of Dummerston, Vermont on the north boundary of Brattleboro was being divided by the owners into 148 lots of 100 acres each. Every settler paid five shillings recording fee and agreed to clear and fence “4 acres, fit for plough or sythe, also erect and furnish a dwelling house thereon not less than 20 feet square.” Also the proximity of Fort Dummer offered some protection against bands of marauding Indians, although occasionally settlers like John Sargent and Frank Moore were killed and scalped while their families were carried away prisoners. There is a traditional story handed down through the generations concerning an Indian raid on a Hadley farm in Vermont back in colonial days. One of the Hadley farmers was plowing out corn, in the primitive fashion of those days—he holding the plow and a young girl riding and guiding the horse between the corn rows. Suddenly they were surprised by a band of Indians so close upon them that he had no time even to save his daughter. Jumping over a nearby stone fence to escape, he caught his foot and fell, and as he did so, Indian arrows whizzed just over his head. As he fell he heard the blow of the tomahawk on the head of the child who was killed and carried away by the savages. This gives some idea of the rugged life faced by our forefathers.

Ebenezer was reputed to be a great wrestler and athlete. Later after moving to Vermont in 1771 he served as a Sergeant in Captain Edmund Munro’s Company, 15th Massachusetts Battalion, Revolutionary War for three years from March 10, 1777, to March 10, 1780.

After 1771 Ebenezer lived in Dummerston near his sons until his death April 27, 1815. Abigail had predeceased him on September 6, 1813, in her seventy-eighth year. They are buried in the Locust Ridge Cemetery a short distance north of Brattleboro. The edges of their slate stone grave markers are covered with sheet lead for protection. Their son Jacob is buried beside them.

Ebenezer and Abigail Spalding Hadley were the parents of five sons and four daughters. They were all born in Westford, Massachusetts:

- ▼ Jesse—Born November 13, 1753. Married in 1778 to Abigail Wilder and lived in Brattleboro, Vermont. He died October 8, 1834.
- ▼ Ebenezer—Born October 20, 1755. Married Jemima —?— and lived in Brattleboro, Vermont.
- ▲ Abigail—Born December 14, 1757. She was married December 26, 1775, to Willard Fletcher who was born August 21, 1749. They lived in Westford, Massachusetts. He died November 30, 1825.
- ▲ Martha—Born January 29, 1760. She was married to Captain Ezra Butterfield of Dummerston who was born in 1749. They had nine children.
- ▼ Jacob—Born April 16, 1762. He was married November 27, 1788, to Molly (Polly) Rice. He died April 15, 1810.
- ▲ Susanna—Born June 13, 1764.
- ▲ Benjamin—Born September 25, 1766. Died May 21, 1767.
- ▼ Benjamin—Born March 3, 1769. Married Abigail Spaulding. He died August 17, 1833. They lived their lives as farmers in Vermont and are buried in the Wilder Cemetery.
- ▲ Sarah—Born July 17, 1771. Married James Healey in 1788.

Jesse Hadley, first child of Ebenezer and Abigail Spalding Hadley, was born in Westford, Massachusetts November 13, 1753.

Jesse took up the Covey farm in the northeast part of the Town of Brattleboro, Vermont and built a frame house thereon. In 1778 at the age of twenty-five he was married to Abigail Wilder of Petersham, Massachusetts. She was born on November 28, 1755, the daughter of Elias and Abigail Rice Wilder Sr. Elias had located in Brattleboro earlier and signed the covenant with Ebenezer Hadley and others on November 12, 1770.

Jesse and Abigail were a strongly religious couple. When the new church was built in Brattleboro, Jesse was the owner of a front pew. According to "Book of the Wilders" the wife Abigail was a first cousin of their neighbor Joshua A. Wilder and four of the Hadley children married four of the Wilders and later moved to Sandy Creek, New York. Jesse's nine children were all born on the farm in Brattleboro but eight of them subsequently migrated to New York State. About 1817 Jesse sold the Covey farm to his brother, Jacob, and moved to Sandy Creek to join his three sons and one daughter. In the beautiful Woodlawn Cemetery at Sandy Creek are the monuments of these two pioneers which state:

"Jesse Hadley died October 8th 1834 age 80 years 10 months and 24 days."

"Abigail wife of Jesse Hadley died October 28th age 78 years and 11 months."

She outlived him exactly 20 days.

In the agrarian economy of that time, and subsequently, it was necessary for the boys to remain on the farm until they were twenty-one years of age. Jesse had married at twenty-five and six of his sons were between twenty-two and twenty-five when they in turn, married. It was generally accepted that the product of the labor of a minor, less his 'keep,' should repay the parent for his upbringing to adulthood. Girls were usually free to marry at eighteen or nineteen.

Besides church services the principal community gatherings were: The Military Muster, husking and quilting bees, house warmings, and barn raisings. It was reported that for the new church in Brattleboro, which replaced the old one on Meeting House Hill, the church raising cost for rum and sugar was half that for the "glass and nales." These pioneers were a hardy, vigorous people who worked hard to feed and clothe themselves from the soil.

Jesse and Abigail Hadley spent a good share of their married lives in Brattleboro, Vermont. Their children were all born there. They lived the life of pioneers, met its difficulties and faced its dangers and raised a family of nine children all of whom lived to grow to maturity and be married and all but one were in their turn pioneers in various parts of Western New York State.

Three sons and a daughter of Jesse Hadley married three daughters and a son of Joshua Wilder who lived in the same neighborhood. These four couples and other neighbors and relatives all migrated to Western New York State, in the years between 1806 and 1812 and about this time (tradition says 1817) Jesse and Abigail Hadley went to Sandy Creek, New York where their three sons and one daughter lived and they also lived there for the rest of their lives.

- ▼ Jesse Jr.—Born December 10, 1781. Married on May 29, 1803, to Abigail Fletcher who was born January 17, 1781. They lived all their lives in Brattleboro, Vermont. He died August 3, 1840. Abigail died in 1860.
- ▼ Simon—Born March 4, 1784. Married on February 16, 1808 to Nabby Wilder who was born April 14, 1787. They moved to Sandy Creek and Simon died February 25, 1844. Nabby died November 21, 1869.
- ▼ Stephen—Born February 7, 1786. Married on December 5, 1811, to Clarissa Wilder who was born October 14, 1789. They moved to Sandy Creek and he died December 18, 1870. She lived to be over ninety-eight years old and died October 28, 1887.
- ▲ Abigail—Born July 10, 1788. Married on December 3, 1807, to Joseph Bemis. They moved to Ellisbury, Jefferson County, New York and raised ten children. Abigail died in 1865 but Joseph lived to be nearly one hundred years of age.
- ▼ Ebenezer—Born June 18, 1790. He was married October 6, 1814, to Sibyl Bemis. He died in Ashford April 16, 1871 and she died February 17, 1864.

Ebenezer Hadley, second child (second son) of Ebenezer and Abigail Spalding Hadley was born October 20, 1755. He was married to Jemima —?—. They lived in Brattleboro, Vermont but it is not known if he came with his father before the Revolution or where he was married. He served in the Revolution and history says he came to Brattleboro after the Revolution but this might not have been the first time, or he might have stayed in Westford, Massachusetts when his father moved his family from there to Brattleboro. He bought a farm of Joshua Bemis in 1787. We do not know who his wife was, when she was born or died or when he died. Some of his children were:

- ▲ Ebenezer Jr.—Born in Brattleboro March 2, 1782.
- ▲ Jonathan—Born in Dummerston June 3, 1784.
- ▲ Levi—Born in Dummerston 1786.
- ▲ Benjamin—Born in Dummerston 1788.

Benjamin Hadley, the eighth child (the fifth son) of Ebenezer and Abigail Spalding Hadley, was born in Westford, Massachusetts March 3, 1769. When he was about two years old he was brought to Brattleboro, Vermont by his parents and lived in that area as a farmer all of his life. He married Abigail Spaulding of Brattleboro and bought a farm of Wilder Rice in 1791. Abigail was born in 1773 and died in 1842. They lived on this rocky farm near the Wilder Homestead all of their lives and are buried with at least seven of their immediate family in the Wilder burial plot with its surrounding wall of rough field stones. Their children were:

- ▼ Rufus—Born February 9, 1797. Married in 1824 to Joanna Bemis who was born in 1797. She was the daughter of Joseph and Jemima Stoddard Bemis. Rufus died in 1865. Joanna had died in 1840.

JESSE

Samuel Hadley, the first child of Jesse and Abigail Wilder Hadley, was born in Brattleboro, Vermont on September 17, 1779. He was married to Betsey Wilder of Dummerston, Vermont on February 26, 1801. She was born March 28, 1783, at Petersham, Massachusetts and was the daughter of Joshua and Lois Hawes Wilder and her family history is to be found in “The Book of the Wilders” by Rev. Moses H. Wilder. Betsey Wilder’s father, Joshua Wilder, was a soldier of the Revolution and her mother’s father, Captain Daniel Hawes, was a Captain of Worcester County, Massachusetts Militia that reinforced the Revolutionary Army before Boston.

Samuel and Betsey lived at Jamaica, Vermont until 1811 or 1812 as five of their children were born there. Late in 1811 or early in 1812 he migrated with his wife and four children from Vermont to New York and located in Oswego County what is now the Village of Sandy Creek. He came all the way through the wilderness driving oxen hitched to a wooden sled or mud boat loaded with his family and all the household goods and supplies as they had room for. There were at least two of his younger brothers who had migrated to Sandy Creek in previous years so that they had friends to receive them when they arrived.

The fact that a sled was used for this trip does not necessarily mean that it was made at a time when there was snow on the ground but only that a vehicle of this kind was better than wheels over the rough uneven ground and fallen timbers of the wilderness.

The eldest son, Jesse F., ten years old, was of considerable help to his father. He wrote later that the land was entirely covered with timber when they arrived. It was necessary to clear some land and build a log house. Practically all homes were of that type in Sandy Creek at the time. Samuel then went back to Vermont, purchased another yoke of oxen and sled, some cattle for his family, and after making up a load of household goods and supplies again made his way on foot through the wilderness to his new home. He was both a farmer and a school teacher.

On this second load Samuel brought the old "Hadley Clock" a tall grandfather clock that had belonged to his father Jesse Hadley and either given to Samuel or purchased by him. The clock must have ticked a century of time on this same New York farm as it was owned by three generations who owned and operated the place. Irving Hadley stated that this stately old clock stood before him sedately ticking off the seconds as he was compiling his records of the Hadley genealogy.

Samuel must have been a strong, vigorous, capable individual. From this small beginning, with the loyal help of his sons, the farm was repeatedly enlarged by purchases from the Constable-Pierrepoint land patents. At the time of his death in 1859 it comprised 150 acres of tilled land and 50 acres of woodland. Then and thereafter, when operated by his son Truman, that farm was the richest and most productive on the Hadley Road.

To judge the activity and number of hired men by the number of teams, the census reports of the time recorded at least two horse teams and one yoke of oxen. Wheat, corn and oats were raised, as well as apples and 150 bushels of potatoes. He raised sheep, and one year census reported 700 pounds of wool, also 900 pounds of butter. Another time 1,000 pounds of cheese as well as 500 pounds of maple sugar. At that time it was not unusual to exchange some maple sugar for some cane sugar pound for pound. They also produced some honey. The women of the family did the spinning and weaving. In 1865 they reported making the yarn for 40 yards of cloth. Flax was spun in the spring and wool in the summer. Tow cloth from flax was worn in the summer and wool in the wintertime. Fresh woven wool was shrunk or 'fulled' i.e. made thicker by moistening, heating and pressing.

Like his father Jesse, Samuel was interested in church work, and was an organizer and trustee of the Methodist Church when it was incorporated December 13, 1830.

Betsey died November 28, 1825. On February 19, 1827, Samuel married a second wife, Anna Dunkler of Brattleboro, Vermont. Anna was born June 1, 1787. There were no issue from this marriage. Anna died July 24, 1857 and Samuel died August 7, 1859.

History records that practically every able bodied man in Sandy Creek assisted the cause in the War of 1812 either as an enlisted man or as a civilian soldier or as an assistant in moving troops or supplies, etc. Samuel was an organizer and a first trustee of the First Methodist Church in Sandy Creek which organization was incorporated December 13, 1830.

Samuel Hadley and his two wives all died in Sandy Creek and are all buried there. There is a marble slab erected for Samuel and another for his two wives. The inscriptions are:

"Samuel Hadley died Aug. 7th 1859 aged 79 years 10 months and 20 days."

*"Betsey died Nov. 28th 1825 aged 42 years
Anna died July 24th 1857 aged 70 years

Stephen Hadley, fourth child (fourth son) of Jesse and Abigail Wilder Hadley was born in Brattleboro, Vermont February 7, 1786. Married on December 5, 1811, to Claïressa Wilder who was born October 14, 1789. They lived all their married lives in Sandy Creek, New York and raised four children.

Business receipts, notes, etc. belonging to Stephen Hadley, and covering the period from 1807 to about 1860, are part of the local history collection of The Half-Shire Historical Society, Richland, New York. In his early twenties he came with some of his brothers from their rocky, hilly farm in Vermont and cleared for themselves more fertile level land in the woods along the valley of Sandy Creek. This area, owned by H. B. Pierrepont, one of the heirs of the William Constable patent, was just being opened up for settlement and in 1825 became the Town of Sandy Creek. When their home was ready, his sweetheart, Claïressa Wilder twenty-two years old, came with her brother Lindal and his wife Betsey Hadley Wilder up the Mohawk Trail on an ox sled leading a horse and cow. Samuel and Claïressa were married December 5, 1811, in Sandy Creek. Theirs was a devout family, observing daily worship and very active in establishing the Methodist Episcopal Church at Sandy Creek. This evidence of the home training by Jesse Hadley back in Vermont was reflected in the lives and activities of all the Hadley brothers who migrated to this area. Samuel was one of the three original trustees when the Church was incorporated December 13, 1830. Stephen was the Treasurer and his brother Elias was an active trustee at various times. Another brother, Truman, was a Steward when the cornerstone for the new brick church was laid in 1878. Church history states that nineteen Hadleys contributed to its cost—more than any other family. Stephen and Claïressa at first lived in a log house on the Lake Road. Later after raising frame Reverend Jacob Hadley, the first child of Jacob and Polly (Molly) Rice Hadley, was born in 1787. Reverend Jacob Hadley was a farmer, a circuit-riding minister, and a teacher. Traveling by ox team through the wilderness with his family he reached Sandy Creek, New York before 1822. There he first built a log cabin just north of the village, later to be replaced by a frame dwelling. His “Marriage Register” is a valuable source of local historical material. Its contents have been reproduced in the files of the Sandy Creek News. The first entry is the marriage, previously noted, of Eliza Hadley to Willam Severance. The Rev. Jacob both preached and taught in the Goodenough School District. He married Abigail Rice who was born in 1790. She died February 20, 1844. Eight months later he married Abigail’s younger sister Lavina who had been widowed from his brother Ephraim ten years before. Lavina was born in 1800 and died January 10, 1877. Jacob had died November 13, 1872. Each brother now lies buried beside his first spouse in the Woodlawn Cemetery.

The children of Rev. Jacob and Abigail Rice Hadley were:

- ▲ Addison C.—Born 1815. Married Lavina (Laura) Rice of Dummerston, Vermont. She was born in 1820. One child, Andrew, died in infancy. Lavina died in 1844 and Addison died in 1886. They are all buried in Sandy Creek Cemetery.

Horatio Hadley, the sixth child (fourth son) of Samuel and Betsey Wilder Hadley, was born in Vermont July 6, 1810. He was about two years old when brought to Sandy Creek, New York by his parents. He was married, on April 4, 1833, to his second cousin Sylvia Hadley who was born in 1810 the daughter of Jacob and Molly (Polly) Rice Hadley. Rev. Jacob Hadley, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Horatio took up the land of the Government in Jefferson Township. They faced the privations of the pioneer and made a home in the wilderness which was to be his home for the rest of his life. Sylvia was taken sick and died in their log cabin March 19, 1840.

Horatio and Sylvia had one child:

- ▲ Almyra—Born January 27, 1835. She was married to a Dr. Thacher and had two children. Almyra Hadley Thacher was married again late in life to Wesley Otto—no children. She died in Pittsford, Hillsdale County, Michigan October 23, 1916.

Horatio was married again on October 26, 1842, to Sarah Bullard of Osseo, Hillsdale County, Michigan. She was born June 8, 1818, in the township of Barry, Orleans County, New York. She was the daughter of Simeon and Polly Baird Bullard. Simeon and Polly had a large family of children and Simeon died in the prime of life in Orleans County, New York. After the death of her husband Polly Baird Bullard migrated to Michigan with all of her children and Peter Failing, her son-in-law, who had married her oldest daughter Rebecca. Polly's daughter Sarah married Horatio Hadley soon after her family had come to Michigan.

Horatio and Sarah Bullard Hadley spent their entire married lives on their farm in Hillsdale County, Michigan and he died there January 27, 1893. Sarah died April 19, 1897.

Marshall Wilder Hadley, first child of Truman and Harriet Upton Hadley, was born January 31, 1854. He was married December 28, 1872, to Emily Wodell who was born in 1854. They migrated to Prairie View, Kansas about 1875 where they raised six children. Emily died in 1935. Marshall died January 13, 1938.

Marshall Wilder Hadley was a large powerfully built man and a pioneer like his forebearers. His only daughter, Edna Mae, has recorded that he migrated by covered wagon from Sandy Creek to Kansas about 1875. There he built a partly dug out sod house of one room with two windows. It was floored and roofed with wide boards and whitewashed inside. Emily, with their two year old son Delle, joined her husband the following year. Under the Homestead Claim Act, he was granted a patent for a quarter section of 160 acres (one fourth of a square mile) in 1889. Subsequently through the Timber Claim Act to encourage the growth of timber on the prairie, he was awarded an additional 160 acres for the planting of locust, walnut, and ash trees. Later he built a comfortable three bedroom house and bought 320 additional acres, making a square mile in all.

The virgin prairie was fertile but it required the hard work of a father and five sons as well as their mother and sister. The plows were equipped with a strong sod cutter to tear apart the heavy root growth which had developed over the ages. Later of course, in the 1930s when this surface protection was gone, the Hadleys like all other inhabitants of that area were victims of the dust bowl storms.

Edna Mae Hadley has written, "It seemed like dust blew night and day for ten years. Houses were not built tight enough to keep out the fine dust. It drifted into piles on the railroad tracks and highways causing many accidents. Many pantries had no windows, food was kept there and people ate in them. I have seen the horizon reddish cast. Lots of times vision was zero.

“In the summer, wind storms necessitated prompt escape to the cyclone cellar, while in winter, blizzards were a hazard to man and beast. For safety at these times a guiding wire was strung from cattle shed to the house. Clarence Hadley was lost in a blizzard with temperature at five degrees below zero. When he was found the next day, his fingers and one toe had been frozen, necessitating their subsequent removal.

“In addition to the dust bowl storms, the settlers had to contend with pests of grasshoppers and chinch bugs. At times their crops were ruined by storms of giant hail stones. While they worked hard and faced many hardships these were in part lightened by human fellowship, quilting parties, and spelling bees held at the school house. This was only a one mile walk from home (no busses for these hardy youngsters) and on the last day of school each year they held the long awaited celebration with tree planting, piece speaking, and a mammoth picnic dinner. There was also an annual Jubilee held fourteen miles distant. For this the family, dressed in their very best, set out at daylight in the horse wagon filled with hay. Mother and daughter had spent all the previous day preparing food for the occasion. Arriving at the grounds, there were races of various kinds, horse-back riding, weight pulling and lifting, contests of strength and endurance, a ball game, and last of all the great balloon ascension. For this the balloon, with a basket suspended beneath, was filled with hot air while being held down with sand bags; when these were detached the balloon rose vertically into the air. When the air cooled, the balloon came down—usually at some distance. Sometimes a trapeze artist would perform on a bar suspended beneath the basket. On one occasion a girl performer came down into a lake and was drowned.”

Mae writes that the Indians living near them at this time were friendly with the settlers. One of their neighbors was an old Indian hunter named Ame Cole. “Ame had a lot of scalps on the wall.”

David Randolph Hadley, third child of Truman and Harriet Upton Hadley, was born December 5, 1860, in the old family homestead on Hadley Road. Originally this had been established by Samuel Hadley as a log house on the south side but in the early '20s it was replaced by a frame structure on the north side of the highway. Here, surrounded by the dissensions of five active brothers, he grew to manhood on a large farm where there was plenty of work for all and firm leadership was a necessity. Dr. Lee A. Hadley reports, "Grandfather Hadley must have qualified as a leader since he was considered successful and 'comfortable.' "

Dr. Hadley goes on to say that his father was twenty-eight years old when he married his mother, Julia May Stevens on May 10, 1888. She was born August 19, 1865 the daughter of Henry and Caroline Streeter Stevens.

David had already scouted the Western States but was not favorably impressed and chose to live in the East. He remained a resident of Sandy Creek and worked as a farmer all of his life.

Dr. Hadley further comments, "Our first home was a farm on the Ridge Road. The R. W. & O. Railroad crossed the back part separating the pasture and sugar bush from the buildings and tillable upland. The only hazard was that of driving the cows across the railroad track twice a day. We were familiar with train schedules, took great pains, and fortunately nothing serious ever happened.

"It was a one mile walk to school. We carried dinner pails. When I was about nine years old, Father purchased for me a nanny goat with a harness. She was hitched to a large wagon and drew me to school many years before busses were invented.

"Brother and I were both born on Ridge Road between Lacona and Richland, but in 1903 Father bought the George L. Davis farm on the Orwell Road. This was much larger and entailed the use of hired help, more equipment, and the output was proportionally greater. Freeman Davis, one of the earlier settlers, had built in 1885 a large farm house with seven bedrooms. Mother lost no time in modernizing this fine old home. From the seven bedrooms she ended up with four bedrooms and a bath. Central heating was installed and other improvements added. It was a nice modern home when she had finished with it. The cousins and other relatives enjoyed visiting us. There was always a spirit of good fellowship and never a dull moment. Our black and white spotted Indian pony, Jessie, made us a lot of fun and furnished the transportation later when it became necessary for Rex and me to drive the three or four miles to Sandy Creek High School. Of course there was lots of work to do but we were all happy together. Happy, that is, until the clouds of World War I began to gather.

“Brother Rex, always popular with his associates, had graduated with his class from High School in 1915 and then worked in the office of our Grandfather Henry Stevens, a world-known pioneer breeder of Holstein-Friesian cattle. When the call came for volunteers he signed up July 20, 1917, with two other Sandy Creek boys, William Prescott and Chadwick Gerow, supposedly to ‘make the world safe for democracy.’ And what a mockery that slogan was! Wives and Mothers who stay at home, yes and Fathers of soldiers too, they are the real heroes of war time.

“We were all home together for Easter 1918. That was the last time of her life that our Mother was ever completely happy. She died June 28, 1920, before the body of her son could be returned to his homeland as she had so ardently desired. They now lie buried side by side in the beautiful Woodlawn Cemetery at Sandy Creek where he was buried with military honors on January 10, 1921.

“Chad was also killed. William Prescott the only surviving member of the original three volunteers and a comrade in the same company has written of Rex: He ‘arrived in France May 30, 1918, with Company B, 105th U.S. Infantry, 27th Division. His sunny disposition and brave uncomplaining performance of duty was an inspiration to his comrades at the front. At the time of his death he had just returned from important and dangerous scouting duty to the supposed safety of the trench, where he was picked off by a German sniper.’ He was carried over the top in broad daylight by the friends who thought so much of him. He was evacuated to the military hospital at Esquelbec, France, but died there the following morning. He had been wounded at Kemmel Hill, Flanders in Northern France. I was on duty with the same brigade and as soon as possible went back to the hospital and talked with a member of the staff. I was assured that Rex had sustained severe damage to the brain which could only have been fatal.

“Father’s interest in farming declined after 1920. He sold the large Orwell Road farm and busied himself with lesser matters. He died quietly August 20, 1943 in his eighty-third year and lies buried in the family plot of Woodlawn Cemetery.” Julia May Hadley had died June 28, 1920.

David and Julia May Hadley’s two sons were:

Dr. Lee Arthur Hadley, the first child of David and Julia May Stevens Hadley, was born February 3, 1892. He was married August 18, 1915, to Lulu Amelia Pohl who was born October 31, 1891. She was the daughter of Lewis C. and Elva Arletta Keller Pohl. Her ancestor Hendrick Klock (1663–1760), a Dutch fur trader, came to America in 1704 and settled in the Mohawk Valley. His grandson, John J. Klock, a Veteran of the Revolutionary War qualified her for membership in the D. A. R. Her grandfather Keller was a veteran of the Civil War.

Dr. Hadley received his medical degree from Syracuse University, College of Medicine, June 1917 and served as a First Lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps, A. E. F. in France with the 27th New York Division and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for action in the Hindenberg Line, September 27, 1918.

He subsequently qualified in the specialty of Radiology, making extensive studies of the spine and writing various books and papers on the subject and retired after fifty years of practice in his chosen profession.
