I knew we were both in mortal danger.

Still, in that instant, I felt well. Whole.

I could feel my heart racing in my chest, the blood pulsing hot and fast through my veins again.

My lungs filled deep with the sweet scent that came off his skin.

It was like there had never been any hole in my chest.

I was perfect-not healed, but as if there had never been a wound in the first place.

ABOUT THREE THINGS I WAS ABSOLUTELY POSITIVE.

First, Edward was a vampire.

Second, there was a part of him—
and I didn't know how dominate that part might be—
that thirsted for my blood.

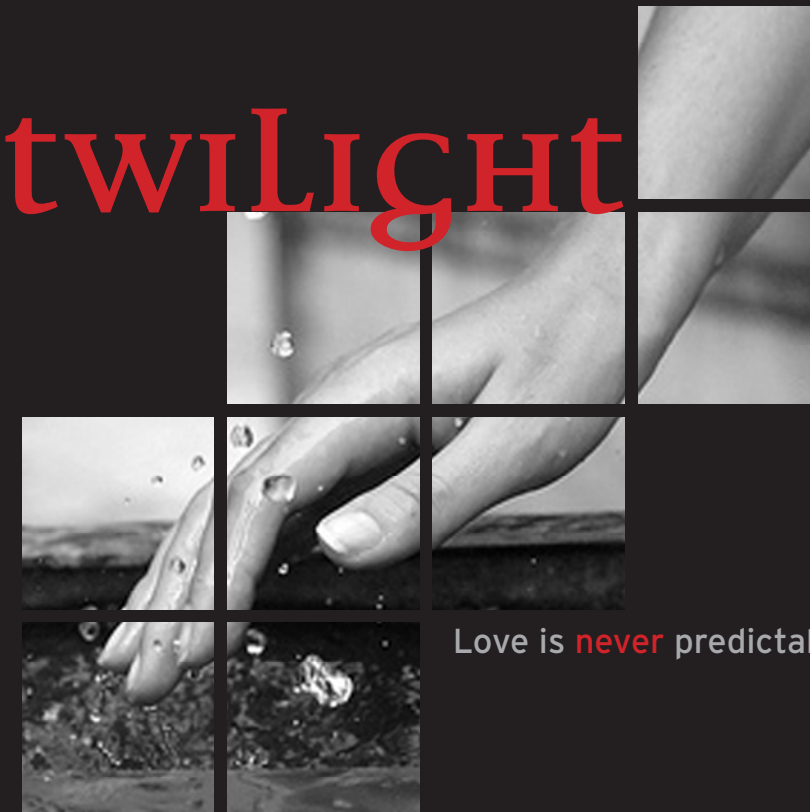

And third, I was unconditionally and irrevocably in love with him.

IN THE DEAD SILENCE, ALL THE DETAILS
SUDDENLY FELL INTO PLACE FOR ME,
WITH A BURST OF INTUITION.

Something Edward didn't want me to know.

Something Jacob wouldn't have kept from me.

Something that had the Cullens and the wolves both-in the woods, moving in the hazardous proximity to each other...

Something I'd been waiting for anyway.

Something I knew would happen again,
as much as I might wish it never would.

IT WAS NEVER GOING TO END, WAS IT?

"BELLA?" EDWARD'S SOFT VOICE CAME FROM BEHIND ME.

I turned to see him spring lightly up the porch steps, his hair windblown from running. He pulled me into his arms at once, just like he had in the parking lot, and kissed me again.

This kiss frightened me. There was too much tension, too strong an edge to the way his lips crushed mine—like he was afraid we had only so much time left to us.
