

Amy's Coma

By Thomas Whitson

You never knew I held you,
ran my fingers through your hair.

You never knew I loved you,
that for hours, I was there.

You never knew the way I felt,
you never knew I cried.

You never did wake up again,
you slipped away, you died.